Your email is a huge live data set of business critical information. By combining Cryoserver with Boldon James Classifier you can structure and access that live data set to boost your business. Running Cryoserver in parallel with Boldon James informs your decision making and increases efficiency.

- As new legislation like EU GDPR comes into force you must have control of that data
- Boldon James Classifier applies classification and protective marking to your email data
- Cryoserver allows you to set privileged access to the archive as appropriate
- Cryoserver allows you to set retention periods using email classification
- Search your archive using Boldon James email classifications

What we can do for your business

If your organisation uses email to communicate, then you're creating a large volume of unstructured and sensitive information.

Boldon James Classifier provides your data with structure, Cryoserver provides the ability to search and retrieve that data. Cryoserver enables your organisation to take full advantage of the digital classification provided by Boldon James to inform eDiscovery searches, and set email retention policies where you need to.

By combining data classification and email archiving, it is possible to make informed decisions on data retention, and search through your archive set for the specific email you need. Boldon James Classifier provides protective marking to identify the nature of sensitive data, Cryoserver means that investigations into that data happen in seconds/minutes, not hours/days.

ISO CERTIFIED

What is Cryoserver?

Cryoserver is a focused email archiving tool, providing a tailored solution to businesses across all sectors to match every customer's individual requirements. We allow real-time capture and storage of every message received by an organisation on a dedicated, secure server. Encryption and high security, along with audited access, mean information can't be altered.

Compliance was the origin of Cryoserver, and remains central to the product today; the fast, audited search and retrieval makes responding quickly and accurately to eDiscovery requests easy. Not only that, but with the addition of Audited Delete, Cryoserver makes email retention transparent and fair.

Thanks to Cryoserver's exclusive focus on email archiving, it is possible to meet compliance needs, improve productivity and enable users with fast search and retrieval of information when it's needed most.

What is Boldon James Classifier?

Boldon James are the market leaders in data classification and secure messaging software. Boldon James Classifier gives customers confidence when it comes to controlling and protecting their data.

Data classification embeds a culture of compliance by involving users in identifying, managing and controlling regulated or sensitive data, while automating parts of the protection process to enforce rules and policies consistently.

As a comprehensive data classification solution, Classifier, allows organisations to empower their users to apply relevant visual and metadata labels to messages and documents in order to enforce information assurance policies, raise user awareness and orchestrate multiple security technologies, such as Data Loss Prevention (DLP) and Information Rights Management. This combined focus on data centric protection has helped organisations prevent serious data loss and improved return on technology investment.
